8:00 AM	5:30 PM	Registration	Westin Resort Legacy Foyer
9:00 AM	3:30 PM	Preconference Session: The Finance Skills We All Need: A Leader’s Guide to Building Financial Capacity hosted by Government Finance Officers Association. See agenda and register online. Description: All leaders in local government need to work with their finance peers to serve critical stakeholders both within the organization and throughout the community. This requires each to understand key finance principles, identify trends in public finance, and develop finance competencies. It also requires that leaders develop a cooperative and trusting relationship with finance. In this session, speakers will provide a quick, yet comprehensive overview of the state of public finance in 2026. Key topics for discussion will be fundamental finance principles, best practices in budgeting, considerations for the current revenue climate, emerging trends and innovations related to finance technology, modernized policy examples, and new regulations and formats for financial reporting. The session will also highlight essential finance skills that all local government leaders should have and strategies that everyone can implement to create a better working relationship with your finance team.	Westin – Meadowbrook I
9:00 AM	3:30 PM	Preconference Session: Trust, Collaboration and Teamwork: Managing Yourself and Working with Others hosted by University of Colorado-Denver Certified Public Management Program. See agenda and register online. Description: Effective teamwork and collaboration are essential in local government work, especially during times of fewer resources and rapid organizational change. Good teamwork starts with a foundation of self-awareness and builds with perspectives and skills that help all members be their best selves. This session will be useful for supervisors, managers and team members who want to be more intentional with their leadership and management approaches. Through neuroscience and psychology, we know how our instinctual ways of thinking can prevent us from seeing a bigger picture and reinforce negative biases. Participants will name and observe unhelpful thinking patterns in themselves and practice ways to overcome them. Trust and psychological safety are key components of successful organizations doing complex work. Especially with public sector employee protections, being able to work through an issue of trust can help teams heal. We’ll explore how we build trust and create a trustful culture. Beyond trust, participants	Westin – Meadowbrook II will learn strategies for creating a workplace culture where all employees feel valued and connected, through feedback and performance management, with common local government policies and requirements in mind. Participants will also develop authentic ways to respond when they feel challenged and when they make mistakes, to help create psychological safety and lead by example. This session pulls from leadership and team management topics explored in the Colorado Certified Public Manager Program and leadership programs offered at University of Colorado Denver School of Public Affairs . Participants will experience an engaging and insightful workshop facilitated by four Colorado CPM instructors and will leave with clear ways to incorporate the learning into their daily work.

9:00 AM	3:30 PM	Preconference Session: Core Strengths Relationship Intelligence using the Strength Development Inventory® hosted by Matt Rivera, Adams County, CO and LGHN board of directors. See agenda and register online. Description: Ever walked into a meeting and thought, “Why is this so awkward?” Or wondered why you and your boss (or teammate, or client) just don’t click—no matter how hard you try? You’re not imagining it. What really drives workplace success isn’t just skills or strategy—it’s relationships. In this interactive and insight-packed session, you’ll explore the Strength Deployment Inventory (SDI) from the creators of Crucial Conversations®—a powerful personality assessment that reveals what motivates people, how they behave under pressure, and why conflict unfolds the way it does. The result? Better conversations, stronger relationships, and more effective results at work. *Pework required (Completing the SDI personal assessment)	Windsor
