

Raoul Lavin, Adjunct Faculty, Askew School of Public Administration, Florida State University. He was with the City of Tallahassee for 27 years and for the last fifteen years, held various positions as part of the City's Executive Team, including Director of the Department of Management & Administration where he was responsible for accounting & financial reporting, budget & policy, grants management, procurement, information systems services, human resources and equity and workforce development. In his capacity as Assistant City Manager he continued to oversee these functions and also managed the City's housing and social services programs, environmental compliance and facilities management, fleet operations, the public transit agency StarMetro, and the golf courses.

His community service activities include volunteering with a number of local organizations including Big Bend Habitat for Humanity, Word of South Festival, the local Equality Florida annual gala, member of the Alumni Advisory Board for the FSU Askew School of Public Administration, and a mentor for the Leon County School Board Mentoring Program.